READS IN NEWSPAPER THAT HIS BROTHER IS SUICIDE*Wheeler Man Thus Learns of Joseph
Thomas' Death Along the McCoy Springs Road.

Reading a newspaper last night, John Thomas of Wheeler learned of the death of his brother, Joseph Thomas of Detroit, who shot and killed himself Thursday evening on the McCoy Springs road. Thomas immediately came to Connellsville and inquired of J. L. Stader, in whose undertaking establishment the body is being held for burial.

Thomas says that his brother came to Connellsville last Sunday from Detroit, where he was employed as a varnisher by the Lozier Motor Company. He went to John's home in Wheeler, remaining there until Thursday morning, when he left the house without stating his destination. Members of the family did not feel alarmed for his safety, believing that he would return. The first they knew of his suicide was last night when Mr. Thomas read the news of it in the paper.

Undertaker Stader had telegraphed to the man's wife in Detroit, and this morning received word that the woman had moved from that city; that she is supposed to be living in New York City. No arrangements for the funeral have been made.

Joseph Thomas shot himself through the heart Thursday evening on the Arch Broder farm. Letters in his pockets told his identity and the reason for the deed—family troubles.

ALIEN BILL PASSESCertain to Become a Law but Callifornia Says It Is Too Lenient.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 3. Following the passage by the State Senate and the House of the amended Webb Bill, chambers of commerce in all parts of the State throughout California are today preparing to invoke the referendum in an effort to prevent the proposed bill becoming a law in its present form. Objection is found in the bill because it is not believed to be sufficiently drastic. It was admitted here today that the Webb bill as it now stands will soon be enacted into law.

Secretary of State Bryan was in attendance at last night's session of the senate when the bill was passed. He had nothing to say, but listened to the debates.

As the senate passed the amended Webb Bill, the measure forbids aliens who cannot secure citizenship papers from holding lands for agricultural purposes, although they may own property for business and rental purposes, and can lease farms for three years. At the end of three years, the land must be sold to a citizen. The land they give up may then be re-leased by another alien who has never previously held a lease.

WILL BRING SUITOne of Heeter Probers Charges Former Secretary With Libel.

PITTSBURG, May 3. The Heeter case has given a new turn today when A. Lee Well, an attorney who is a member of the board named to probe the charges against Superintendent S. L. Heeter of the public schools, filed suit against Francis Fairman to recover $10,000 damages. Well charged Fairman with libel.

At a monster mass meeting it is alleged that Fairman, formerly secretary for Well, charged the probers with being appointed by a school board to "revile" Heeter. His attack upon Well was especially bitter. Heeter is expected to reach Pittsburgh tomorrow from Indiana, where he was called by his mother's illness. The probers plan to begin their investigation into the case on Monday.

NO COMPANY GUARDSGovernor Hatfield Places Ban on Their Employment at Mines.

CHARLESTON, May 3. Governor Hatfield today put a ban on companies employing company guards in the coal fields of the state. He is expected that he will do the same in the Paint Creek coal fields before the day is over.

Martial law still exists in both regions. Although officials are today preparing to open the mines following a two year's strike in which several persons were killed, Socialists are working among the men in an effort to persuade them not to return to work until the conditions offered them by the operators are considerable better.

RIGID TESTS FOR MINE FOREMEN IS
RULE THIS YEAR*Examinations Will Begin
Here in the Armory on Tuesday.*CHARACTER UNDER SCRUTINY*Recommendations Will Be Made Part of Examination Papers and Men Held Responsible for Recommending Any One Not Fitted for Place.

The tests for mine foremen and fire bosses, particularly the former, will be more rigid in the bituminous region this year than ever. The examinations will start in all the bituminous districts next Tuesday and continue for three days. The mine foreman candidates will take their tests on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday the prospective fire bosses will be examined.

Heretofore it has been customary to give the mine-foreman candidates a three-day test, but the general board of examiners has decided that more attention be given to the oral quiz than that which is written. Mining men believe that more attention should be paid to oral examinations, for in that manner it is possible to better gauge the candidate's mental ability.

Another departure to be followed this year is that all recommendations will be attached to the papers of the successful candidates. As those recommendations are issued prior to the granting of certificates, it will be possible in every district to check those superintendents and others who give recommendations, and to hold them responsible if it is found that the character of the applicant is not in line with the recommendations. Special attention will be paid this year to the character of the applicant, especially with regard to his reputation for sobriety and morality.

The examination board in the Ninth district is made up of P. J. Walsh, mine inspector; D. R. DeRiest, superintendent at Royal, who represents the operators, and James Conway of Trotter, representative of the miners. W. J. Hicks will again serve as secretary. The sessions will begin at 9 o'clock each morning. The following rules have been made, and are uniform in all the districts:

Upon arrival of the applicants, they will be assigned seats which they must occupy at each session of the examination.

Applicants will be given a slip of paper containing a number; this number must be placed at the top of each sheet of answers. Applicants will detach one end of the slip containing the number and write their name and address and any other information required thereon and place it in an envelope, which will be sealed by one of the members of the board.

Write on one side of the paper only, and on the inside of the margin, which is on the left-hand side of the paper, placing the number of the question asked on the margin, and opposite the answer to the question.

Applicants will not be allowed to have in their possession any books, paper or other aid to his memory. Applicants will not be allowed to communicate with another applicant or visitor without permission from a member of the board.

As soon as an applicant has finished his answers to the questions given out for each session, he shall hand them to a member of the board and leave the room.

No more than one session of questions will be given to an applicant at one session, and they must be answered before the close of the session.

Do not repeat the question in your answer; give only the question number.

Prompt attention and quiet are absolutely necessary. Satisfactory testimonials (opinions) of character showing the applicants to be of temperate habits and of good repute as men of personal integrity, also certificates showing the length of service in the different mines are required by the board of examiners.

The testimonials (certificates) must be handed to the board before final adjournment. They must be enclosed in an envelope marked with the name and address of the applicant, but the envelope are not to be sealed.

Certificates will be granted as follows: Second grade certificates to those making at least 80 per cent on the second grade questions, and a satisfactory oral examination. First grade certificates to those making at least 80 per cent on each of the first and second grade questions, and at least 80 per cent on the first grade questions, and a satisfactory oral examination. Assistant mine foreman certificates to those making not less than 70 per cent on each of the first and second grade examinations, and a satisfactory oral examination. Fire boss certificates to those making at least 65 per cent on the fire boss examination, and a satisfactory oral examination.

The examination board will require the applicants to attend the first two days. For first grade certificates the applicants are required to attend the four sessions. For fire boss certificates, the applicants are required to attend on the third day only. All applicants sitting for the mine foreman or assistant mine foreman examination shall pay the board the sum of one dollar.

All applicants sitting for the fire boss examination shall pay the board the sum of one dollar.

All successful applicants shall pay the board the additional sum of two dollars for each certificate.

All applicants are requested to prepare their manuscript in a neat and orderly manner, paragraphing the main points in each answer, and leaving two blank spaces between the answers of each question.

BUFANO INTERESTS CARRHe Enlists Congressman in Fight in Behalf of Immigrants.

Pasquale Bufano, manager of the Young Trust Company, today transferred from New York what three of the scene of his fight to gain admittance to this country for 49 Italian immigrants, being held by the immigration commissioners at Ellis Island as violators of the contract-labor law.

Word to this effect was received this morning from Mr. Bufano, who announced that he leaves today for Washington to interview Congressman Wooda N. Carr in behalf of the immigrants.

According to a letter received from Bufano last night, the immigrants who arrived here from Naples on April 25 are being forbidden admittance to America through a misunderstanding, which he is endeavoring to explain to the commissioners.

The latter charge that the direction of a contract-labor firm, this Mr. Bufano claims, is not the truth. He says that he learned on his arrival in New York that three of the group, known as Hail or Hap, had been before leaving Italy, making about labor conditions in the United States. These men, it is said, did not enter into a contract with the contractor, although the immigration authorities insist they did.

Congressman Carr has agreed to investigate the matter on the behalf of Mr. Bufano, and he will hold a conference with the contractor's man in Washington this afternoon.

MERCURY SIZZLESNinety-Five in the Shade Is a New Record for the Season.

The mercury literally sizzled yesterday and set a new mark for the season by reaching 95 in the shade. Just like summer was the weather. It had been fine for several days past, and the hills and dunes are bright and green. The season is bright and green. The season is bright and green.

The temperature hit the high places with a vengeance. It started out like another sizzler again today, although the first half across the plate, and indications were that rain might happen along. The weather man says it might rain late tonight or tomorrow, but increasing cloudiness is the worst he predicts for the baseball season opens here today.

STRIKERS ARE RECOGNIZED.Trades and Labor Council to Aid the Buffalo Clerks.

Officials of the Union, Trades and Labor Council today recognized the strike of the department store employees and agreed to take charge of the situation. A meeting of the strikers will be held to determine whether the council shall present a new ultimatum to the employers.

Strike conditions are unchanged. The stores are being picketed by the strikers who seek to prevent anyone from taking their places. The police protection has been doubled to prevent trouble.

STRIKE VOTE ORDEREDQuick Action Follows Refusal of Demands of Truismen.

NEW YORK, May 3. A strike vote of the 100,000 conductors and trainmen on railroads in Eastern territory was ordered last night by the men's representatives who have been in conference with the railroad managers here over demands for increased wages recently submitted by the employees.

The roads denied the men's demands and refused a proposition to submit the dispute to arbitration. This refusal was speedily followed by a meeting of the men's representatives at which it was unanimously decided to order a strike vote.

Formal notice of this action was served upon the roads last evening in a letter signed by A. B. Garrahan, president of the State Island Railway Conductors, and D. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. It is expected the polling will occupy two weeks or more.

PROMOTION FOR PITTSBURG.

W. F. Aycock, formerly assistant general superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Pittsburgh, has been transferred to the same position with headquarters at New York, and has also been appointed general superintendent of the State Island Railway Company and the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company, both of which are Baltimore & Ohio lines operated on State Island.

a Big Success Here This Season.

A large crowd will enter the gates at Fayette field this afternoon, when the Cokers officially open their playing season with Irwin as opponents. If indications this morning count for anything, scores of inquiries for tickets started pouring in on the club management before noon, and it is anticipated that when the gates are thrown open at two o'clock there will be a rush of fans.

Manager Silcox definitely announced his lineup this morning. Williams will be at first base, Chip Francis at second, Angus at third, Stillwell at short, Schullis or Jones behind the bat, Klingensmith or Smith in left field, Halkin in center, Hail or Hap in right and Silcox, George, or Pfeiffer in the box.

As reported yesterday, Silcox will open the game if his arm is in good condition. He has been practicing all spring and while he is feeling first class he does not intend to jump into the game if he thinks a too early start is going to interfere with his condition later on.

Tom hasn't lost any of his cunning since he left the minors and he is in fine class condition for the premier. The diamond was rolled for the last time this morning, and finishing touches were made to odds and ends that required attention. The fence surrounding the field has been repaired, and is now in first class shape.

After forming at the Smith House at two o'clock, the procession of autos, containing borough officials, members of the two ball teams, club officers and invited guests, will parade through town, led by two brass bands. After passing through the business section, the parade will swing toward the ball park, which will be reached in sufficient time for the players to indulge in a short practice before the game is called.

One of the features of the contest, which lends a big league flavor to the opener, is that Burgess, J. L. Evans will pitch the first ball across the plate, officially opening the season and beginning the game. It is understood that the burgess has been practicing for the event, his friends claiming that he hasn't been seen out in his new auto as frequently as usual of late, and is in tip-top form.

TIED OF CONGRESSJames J. Hill Says It Should Adjourn for Ten Years.

ST. PAUL, May 3. Congress should adjourn and stay adjourned for 10 years in order to better conditions in the United States, according to James J. Hill, who was the principal speaker at a meeting held for the purpose of boosting the Northwest last night.

Mr. Hill turned from the commercial progress of the Northwest long enough to attack congressional legislation which he said had prevented a more rapid influx of immigration. Laws that have been passed recently are responsible for the flood of immigration to the Argentine Republic, he asserted.

"If we could just tie a ball on each one of our illustrious statesmen who are trying to keep workmen out of this country and adjourn Congress for 10 years, I believe the country would be a happier and more prosperous place," Mr. Hill said.

"Business men would then carry on big undertakings without fear of legislative interruption."

NEW YORK, May 3. Dame nature smiled today on the 30,000 advocates of women suffrage who gathered in Washington Square prior to the third annual parade. The skies were clear and the temperature just right to make those 55-cent straw hats with their yellow cascades, as appropriate as well as fetching. Determined, serious women breathed the spirit of the message that was sent by their leaders.

"Let the spirit and faith of Joan of Arc lead us on," read.

No recognition will be given the spectators, not even the 1,600 husbands of the marchers, assembled on a special platform. The parade was led by Miss Inez St. John, 21 beautiful women on horseback. There were 35 bands and many organizations in line, including "General" Rosalie Jones and her hikers, and an army of sympathetic husbands.

BLAMED FOR FIRESSuffragettes Believed to Have Started

The second fire occurred at Ashley in Aberdeen, where the new wing to the public schools was burned to the ground.

SPRINKLER OUT. The municipal water wagon was on the streets last night laying the dust for today when the crowds get out in the pay day and regular Saturday throng. There is a good deal of talk of having the sprinkling wagon out in great deal of effort than it is, as the streets are very dusty. Pittsburgh street is particularly so and the amount of goods that would be saved to the merchants if so much dust did not blow about as well as the amount of more beautiful air on account of frequent sprinkling and sweeping as done would make it a matter of economy to the town to have frequent sprinklings.

How to Reduce Insurance Rates?

The conditions are in the hands of the policyholder. The insurance man reads the conditions and applies them in formulating the rate.

The average insurer is a careless business man. He will employ counsel to advise him on every transaction of a technical nature, yet will frequently entrust his Fire Insurance to some relative or friend, whose sole claim is that he can procure policies at current tariff rates.

To obtain the Lowest Rates is only one of the duties of an insurance agent.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL NO. 64.

This plan stands out in bold contrast to the Bungalow types which form the major part of this collection. It is of the design known as a square type two-story house, and is intended for a large family. No pains have been spared to make it convenient and no waste room is to be found anywhere, even the small space under the stair landing has been utilized as a place for shoes and is reached by means of a small door in the Dining Room. A coat closet is put under the stairs in the Hall. The large Living Room with its brick mantel and large window seat makes a pleasant place for the family to gather and spend the long winter evenings. The Dining Room is ample for the use of a large family and is greatly enhanced by the window seat which may be kept filled with flowers or plants. A cool retreat for a summer evening is found on the screened porch opening off the dining room. The kitchen is free from built-in furniture excepting the sink and a small china cupboard flush with the wall over cedar stairs. The Pantry is compact and complete with cupboard and work table with bin and drawers under.

The second floor contains four large sleeping rooms the two in front being connected with a cased opening being used by the parents and small children. The Bath is complete in every detail. The Attic furnished good storage room.

MRS WORRY—John Must Have His Little Pleasures.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

by Harry King Toole

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright, by A. M. McClure & Co., Inc.

The new venture would be a good thing for Belmont—if the company would confine itself to good works. The most objectionable thing was the lack of frankness on the part of the men back of the enterprise. Here was a corporation seeking to serve the public and not taking the public into its confidence.

While Morrison and the publisher of the News were conversing at the station, a telegram from the Chicago News Agency was delivered to Wright.

"Sammerley is the private secretary of Adolphus Kowner, Kowner & Co., packers. Others are clerks in law office of Kendall, Strang & Kendall."

"By George!" exclaimed Wright. "The stockyards company!"

Then he remembered what the county supervisor had innocently told. There could be no doubt of it. The stockyards company was making some move which it did not dare make openly.

"It looks like it," assented Morrison. "Have you any idea what they want?"

"Not the slightest. They're not fighting the traction company, I know."

This, thought Wright, explained Gilbert's many visits to Chicago recently. The stockyards attorney had apparently no connection with the new company, but Wright and Morrison, too, when it was explained to him, were both of the opinion that he was directing every move. If he was in it, David Kerr was in it; and if David Kerr was in it, he was not in it for his health.

In seeking to unravel the tangled skein they now had a loose end to work with. They could not imagine, however, why the stockyards company was entering the street car field in such a peculiar manner.

Wright sat with his chair tilted back against the wall, his hands behind his head, gazing at the map on the wall opposite.

"Morrison, a newspaper man has to trust in many cases to his sixth sense; that's his nose for news, for the big story. Often he misses fire, but when he does hit the bull's-eye everybody knows it."

"Such was Wright's promise as he brought his chair down on the floor and prepared to tell the lawyer what his sixth sense had made him feel was the real object of the game. "The stockyards company is preparing to steal a street."

"What?" gasped Morrison. "What makes you think so?"

"Everything. See how the river is eating up the only tracks to the stockyards. They've got to get to the yards further east. Maple Avenue is the easiest way. The franchise says nothing about what kind of cars are to run, how they are to be propelled, or what they are to carry. I'll bet they are going to run cattle cars filled with hogs and sheep and cattle down Maple Avenue, and pull them with steam engines, too."

"I won't believe it," protested the lawyer. "Maple Avenue is a residence street!"

"The stockyards company is a foreign corporation interested only in dividends."

"Look at Boston Park!"

"Yes, take a good look; you won't want to be in a year from now."

"I don't believe it."

"Anyway, that's the theory I'm going on. If it is correct, I've struck the nail on the head with my first guess. If it is wrong, I'll keep hammering away until the public demands and is given the truth. If I'm wrong, then they'll soon be smoked out. They can't stand being so misinterpreted when making the public for a favor. But I'm right, I tell you. They're going to connect with the railway tracks where they cross Maple Avenue two blocks below Bluff Street. Such a bolt line railway will be extremely valuable."

It was after six o'clock before they decided to leave the office. As every pro and con of the situation had not been exhausted, they adjourned to the Belmont Club for dinner and there continued puzzling over the franchise and its meaning.

Shortly before eight o'clock Wright drained his coffee cup and looked across the table at his companion. "Doing anything tonight?" he inquired.

"No. Nothing on hand that I know of."

"I'm calling on Miss Kerr tonight. I want you to go with me; I can't go alone."

"I shall be very glad to," replied the young lawyer, successfully concealing his surprise.

Wright realized the fight was on. He also knew what Gloria had come to mean to him, and after what they had said last night he was afraid to see her alone. Now his first duty was to the public, that public which so often accepts benefits and sacrifices all unconscious of its own gain and what the cost has been. For the general good, for an ideal, for his belief in what a paper should be, he was putting aside—just for the time, his heart told him—the one woman who could make him supremely happy.

The deferring of hope was heavy upon Wright's heart as with Morrison he walked in silence to Gilbert's house. To himself he kept repeating some verses from their "birthday book."

In the twilight we parted,
We dreamed a sweet dream
That we met and we parted
Again broke-hearted.
But dreams come again.

CHAPTER IX.

The story Wright had printed the first day and the reply it drew from the Banner the next morning caused the News to be awaited with undiminished eagerness on the second after-noon. This was heightened on the part of the men in the syndicate interested in the franchise by the portentous questions put to them in the morning by News reporters. David Kerr was called on the telephone half a dozen times by his lieutenants, and arrangements were made to have a line open to Emerald Springs at three-thirty, the hour when the News was issued.

Although they were prepared to discuss some of the story because of the questions asked them, yet none of the ring men was prepared for a revelation of the scheme such as the News made. Black headlines ran across four columns and the story also took up most of the second page. There was a map of the proposed interurban route, and pictures of pretty homes on Maple Avenue. But from one end of the story to the other there was no mention of David Kerr or of the local backing being given the bill before the council. It was expressly stated that the incorporators of the new company were merely dummy names and that he did not even know if the company was interested in the line proposed. He did not see how, as a company, it could be.

Gilbert sat in his office as soon as he secured a paper and read the story word for word over the telephone to Kerr. The latter promptly announced that he would be home the next day, and ordered that Gloria be taken from Belmont on any pretext whatever for a few days until the night had been allowed to die down. The next day was Sunday, on which Wright published no paper, and Kerr would be home before another issue appeared. He agreed with Gilbert that the Banner ought to ridicule the alleged exposure.

Sunday night, much to her surprise but not much against her will, Gloria went to St. Louis with Mrs. Gilbert to pick out furniture for Locust Lawn. She did not know that her father had returned from Emerald Springs that morning and had been closeted all afternoon with Gilbert and John Kendall, who had hurried to Belmont in response to a telegram. The girl had not seen Wright all day, nor had she seen him Saturday, and there came from him a box of roses at noon. Little wretch that she was, she meant to surprise him by sending him a note of thanks from St. Louis. She knew what would join her and Mrs. Gilbert there on her hat that they would be glad to see him.

Wright received her note and perceived the slightly veiled invitation, but he was too busy ever to answer it. It was a week that contained more excitement than Belmont had seen since a frontier village, it had struggled with the question of whether the state should secede or remain in the Union. David Kerr found himself confronted by a formidable line of battle. The Banner kept pounding away at the News, but the afternoon paper was not to be diverted from its purpose. The citizens on Maple Avenue formed the Maple League, and wore buttons on which were a maple leaf and the legend, "Help us save our homes."

The car line was to run through the seventh and eighth wards, and the aldermen in those wards were deluged with letters, post cards, telephone calls and personal visits. Finally they went to David Kerr and begged him that if he had enough votes without them to let them oppose the franchise as they were in the midst of their canvass for re-election. The boss held them in line.

The bill had the second reading at the council meeting Tuesday, but under orders from Kerr nothing further was done with it at that time. He began to worry about the approaching election. What to him was the passing of the bill at that time compared to the control of the city for the next two years? If he let it sleep now and the election went his way then it could be passed soon after. By the time another election rolled around, Belmont would have forgotten.

So it came about that the Kerr adherents tried to forget the franchise. When the bill disappeared they were loud in their denunciation of the opposition thieves who had stolen it. With this outburst they were willing to subside and forget the matter, but this the News would not permit.

Wright kept it to the front and they were forced to accept it as an issue. The continuous attitude of apology was a constant reminder to Belmont that things were not as they should be and that the way to remedy conditions was to defeat the city machine at the polls. The editor spent all his daylight hours at his office, and often was there until late in the night in conference with various leaders. The opponents of Kerr had some old scores to settle, and this was the chance to settle them. The master was usually to be found on Kerr's side, although under cover, but this time he could not afford to use his influence for his party in city affairs—even for a consideration. The boss knew the game too well to press him.

In the last days of the campaign the anti-Kerr leaders learned with surprise that Senator McIntire, their state boss, was coming to Belmont for a day. They had not sent for him, and were at a loss to account for the visit. He had not taken any one into his confidence, merely saying he was coming on business. Why he should journey from Washington to Belmont for so short a stay they could not understand. He gave it out that he was making a flying visit to his home, but he came straight to Belmont. Only two men besides the senator knew his mission, the emissary who carried the message to Washington and the man who sent for him. David Kerr wanted to see him.

It was only three days before election when Senator McIntire visited Belmont. He went to the Hotel Belmont and took a suite of rooms, but did not register. After talking to David Kerr over the telephone, he ordered an early luncheon for two served in his private parlor. Kerr arrived before the table was spread and immediately began to explain the situation. All through the meal the two men talked. McIntire questioned and Kerr explained.

Practical politics was the business of Senator James McIntire just as it was of Mr. David Kerr. Jim McIntire liked to pose before the public and to make flamboyant speeches. Kerr preferred to sit in his dingy real estate office and pull the strings that made the puppets dance. To him speech making and posing were like the tinsel on a drum major's uniform. He cared only for power, it was immaterial to him how gaudy glory was apportioned.

"It looks like he's got you in bad, Dave," said the senator. "I don't see how I can help you this trip."

Kerr slowly set down his glass of water and straightened up in his chair, for he knew that the deal was now under way. He had played fair with Jim McIntire and told him just the exact situation.

"Lots of things can happen, Jim. I've decided to get his paper, but I need votes. It's too close to election. You ain't going to let him play you for a sucker. We've got to clean him, or he'll turn on you just as he has on me."

"I guess I ought to wait till he does," was the cautious response. "I've got enough troubles without going out and lassoing a young grizzly bear."

"He ain't got no party," urged Kerr, "and you know how it happens in them towns where such a paper gets a start. He's got these fools in Belmont believing he's George Washington come to life again."

ing supplies to the workhouse or the jail, it faced the alternative of losing a fat account or confounding its advising to the Banner. The proprietor being part of the machine, else nothing would ever have been purchased from him for the city's use, promptly gave up the News. It was the same with meat markets. Other lines of business were approached in other ways, but the result was always the same—a loss of advertising revenue to the News. Even the railroads were derelict in delivering his white paper, and Wright spent many an anxious hour tracing cars from the mill to find them lost in the Belmont yards.

One valuable source of information was developed by the News in a former machine hanger named Jack Durken. He came to work in the circulation department of the paper, and Wright first heard of him through the circulation manager. At Wright's request the man came to his office and from his story the editor gathered that he had not received fair treatment at the hands of the other gangsters. He had lived in the disreputable first ward and had had trouble with Mike Noonan, a ward leader. For his work he had been made a street cleaning inspector, but after having incurred the ire of Noonan had lost his job.

Nothing the enemy did was able to keep Wright from publishing a paper every day. Every issue was a constant reminder to Belmont that things were not as they should be and that the way to remedy conditions was to defeat the city machine at the polls. The editor spent all his daylight hours at his office, and often was there until late in the night in conference with various leaders. The opponents of Kerr had some old scores to settle, and this was the chance to settle them. The master was usually to be found on Kerr's side, although under cover, but this time he could not afford to use his influence for his party in city affairs—even for a consideration. The boss knew the game too well to press him.

"I'm sorry for you, Dave, but honestly I don't see where I can help out any. It would give me too black an eye, because the boys here have set their hearts on winning this time."

Kerr saw that McIntire was forcing his hand, and he decided to approach the situation from another side.

"The next legislature 'll elect your successor," he suggested.

"I'm going to be my own successor," asserted the senator.

"It's going to be a hot fight," continued Kerr, unmindful of McIntire's remark. "The state will swing back to our party, but nobody knows how the legislature 'll be on joint ball."

"It's going to be for me if I can have anything to say about it."

"Well, you don't seem to be going about it very actively," retorted Kerr with the nearest approach to sarcasm he permitted himself during the interview. "Even if the legislature is controlled by your party, you've got a fight on your hands. There's Congressman Jenkinson and old man Graham down in Washington County. He's almost as strong as you are, and his part of the state 'll have no recognition for a long time."

McIntire did not answer at once. He got up from the table and walked to the window. When at last he turned to Kerr the question had been gone over thoroughly in his mind.

"Well, Dave," he asked with a smile, "what's the answer?"

"You've got to knifé your ticket, so's these fool reformers can't carry Belmont."

"What'd I get out of it?" drawled out the senator.

"Seven votes in the house and two in the senate."

Again the apostle of practical politics sat back and took stock of the situation. Belmont was nothing to him. It mattered nothing at all to him how the town went as far as city affairs were concerned. Nine votes were not to be despised. He was cautious, however, and wanted particulars.

"How you going to deliver?" he asked.

"We've got that many to run this fall and I'll let the opposition have it their own way. Name your men now if you want to."

"That many's bound to make the legislature ours on joint ballot."

Kerr knew this but he was quite willing to change the political complexion of the legislature of a great state, perhaps hamper the governor in wise and necessary legislation and keep the state from having a senator of its own choice, all to hold Belmont for his own. McIntire was no less willing to change victory into defeat and hand the city over to the rapacity of the Interurban Railway Company, only to retain his senatorial office.

"All right," he consented, "but you've got to do two things take care of some of the boys and muzzle the News. I can't have that paper making trouble for me."

"I'll take care of the boys all right, and I've told you what I'm going to do—I'm going to buy the News."

"Can you?"

"I've got to have it, and I don't care how, but it's got to be mine."

"Got any idea?" asked the senator. "No, but every man's got his price. Jim, in some form or other." If he had time for reflection, David Kerr would have enjoyed this remark, since it was given a humorous turn by the fact that he had just discovered the price of the junior senator from his own state.

"I'll go up to the postoffice and call on some of the boys," said McIntire as Kerr rose to go. "I'll have to tell Davidson and Fiske. When you get word to them that the News is friendly, they'll pass the word along. You've got three days; that ought to be plenty of time, but you must have the paper or the deal's off. Who'll take it?"

"I don't know yet who we'll get to take it."

"Not much," Kerr replied grimly. "I'm going to put it where it won't be no more trouble to me, and it's going to be run from my office."

Gently Clean Your Liver and Constipated Bowels While You Sleep.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You mean and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

This is important.
Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A

The trouble began as a

Why Do We Hold to Society Brand, Hirsch Wickwire, Michael Stern and W. M. Clothes For Men

---When Other Lines That Would Cost US Less Money
Could be Sold at Equal Prices

Here's Why--

at $12.50 and $15 warranted not to fade. Here, they are pure wool, also. Now, when the low-priced end of a stock is so well taken care of, isn't it reasonable to suppose that the suits selling for more (the best selling end) is just as carefully guarded? It is certainly here!

A whatever price a man elects to pay for a suit here—$12.50, $13.50, $15.00, $17.50 to $35—he's going to get value and the very best fabric, pattern, tailoring and finish that it's possible to put into a suit of that price.

According to what he pays he's going to get a distinct degree of fineness in pattern, cloth and making.

Wright-Metzler Company vouches for what a customer don't see in a suit—the inside work that makes or mars the shape after wearing. A suit that's been fitted to you will continue to fit as long as you wear it, and if it unexpectedly goes wrong after leaving this store we're ready—and anxious—to right it—instantly! You can't do better at any store. Will you choose that suit today?
